

The School of Applied Language and Intercultural Studies (SALIS)

Dublin City University

SALIS is amongst Ireland's foremost centres of research in intercultural, language and translation studies. It offers a dynamic, collaborative and supportive research environment.

SALIS has developed an international reputation for its research expertise in a range of areas including intercultural relations, multilingualism, language learning and teaching, sexuality studies, interpreting in the Courts, comparative literary and cultural Studies, the intercultural workplace, video games translation, multicultural schooling, translation technology, gender and language, language planning and policy and internet language. (See Staff Research Interests at: <http://www.dcu.ie/salis/research.shtml> for a full list of our research areas).

As part of our commitment to expanding our research capability, SALIS is pleased to offer 5 PhD scholarships for the academic year 2011/12:

- 2 full PhD scholarships of €20,000 (including fees) &
- 3 partial PhD scholarships of €12,000 EURO (including fees)

These 5 scholarships are for one year only, with the possible option of extension to a maximum of three years.

Interested candidates should include the following in their applications:

- CV
- Letter outlining the applicant's suitability for the scholarship
- Research proposal (no more than 3,000 words, including potential supervisor(s) and a bibliography)
- Names of two academic referees

Ideally candidates should possess a relevant undergraduate degree at a high level and/or hold a relevant masters qualification. Having conducted some research in their chosen field would also be an advantage.

Please forward applications (by email and post) to: Dr Jennifer Bruen, SALIS Research Convenor, SALIS, DCU, Glasnevin, Dublin 9, Ireland.

Email: Jennifer.Bruen@dcu.ie

Closing date for receipt of applications: 30th June 2011