Vacancy Advertising

Recruitment and Selection

The University asserts that its staff are its greatest asset and that it holds all the various categories in equal esteem.

2.3 Advertising

In general, vacancies should be advertised so as to ensure the best possible field of applicants. Advertisements should refer to the University being an Equal Opportunities Employer and be designed to comply with the University’s Equality and Access Policy.

Procedures for Advertising: Vacancies to be advertised, whether internally in the first place or externally, should be given as wide a circulation as possible to those who are likely to possess appropriate qualifications and have relevant experience. For permanent positions, it is normal practice to advertise publicly in a national newspaper. In addition to this, the DCU Intranet, World Wide Web, international journals and local newspapers will be used where appropriate. The most appropriate method of advertising is determined by the nature of the position. The Human Resources Office can advise on the various options available. In keeping with the University’s policy to attract the most suitable candidates, headhunting and/or personal invitation to apply may be used concurrently with public advertising where deemed appropriate as an additional source of qualified applicants. Advertising should be cost effective.

Staff on Parental Leave, Leave of Absence or Sabbatical Leave will, where possible, be informed of relevant vacancies by the Head of School/Unit. All job advertisements are agreed between the Human Resources Office and the Head of School/Unit. Once agreed, an Advertising Application Form should be completed and returned to the Human Resources Office (Advertising Section) together with all the material to be sent to candidates.
